Subject: September Meeting Time

Hey Everyone It look like the time has come for the next meeting! See you on Thursday, I think I can make it by 8 after soccer,

"It's all in the Details" by John Haer
Sometimes a real rarity is mistakenly attributed as a more or very common type. Is that Minerva or Ares? Isn't the portrait supposed to be facing right instead of left? Is that symbol a trident head or possibly an AX monogram denoting a connection to Achiles?John will look at 7 different coins and point out some significant features that may help the collector pick out real rarities from the very common. Thus you may be better armed when confronting pick-bins and what are assumed to be common coins! If you have any coins that with a cursory glance appear common, but on closer examination are not, please bring them to share.
