Mithradates VI intermittently engaged Rome in three distinct wars over a vast area of lands and great span of time(88BC to 63BC).During the process,he attained god-like status and historical immortality.There was also a prodigious outpouring of coinage,not only to finance his campaigns but to solidify his worldly status and represent his connection to the ultimate hellenistic hero,Alexander the Great.Several examples of coinage will be provided that illustrate and give insight into this monumental character's persona if not psyche.
